Jointly organize
One Day symposia on

Language, Literature, and Cognition of Texts
(For Post Graduate Students of University)

This Student-Symposia focuses on the interface between language/literature and its cognition. Its aim is to investigate the impact of a range of linguistic/literary features on the reading experience. It will endeavour to draw on methodologies in the field of literary criticism. It will attempt to analyze the multiple meanings that emerge or are constructed in literary texts.

Participating students will be able to investigate and learn the relationship between literary texts and reader engagements. The Symposia will address a series of questions related to why we are moved by literature. Using a number of literary texts from a variety of genres, students will be encouraged to reflect on how meaning is constructed through the role of the reader in the meaning construction process.

The students of M A of HNGU affiliated P G centers are invited to select any text from the syllabus and present a paper pertaining to "cognition of the select text". This will be followed by interactions and discussions. All the participants be awarded certificates and select three papers will be awarded prizes.

Date: 05/04/2022

Time: 10.00 a.m

Resource Person: Dr Anil Kapoor

Registration Fee: Rs. 100/- (Outside candidates can do registration on the spot too.) The symposia will be followed by Lunch at Rosy Blue Pavilion.

Venue: B C A Hall, G D Modi Vidyasankul, Palanpur.

Report One Day Symposia on Language, literature, and cognition of texts

On 5th April, 2022, English Teachers Association, H N G U and G D Modi College of Arts, Palanpur jointly organized One Day symposia on Language, Literature, and Cognition of Texts (For Post Graduate Students of University). The aim of this Student-Symposium was to focus on the interface between language/literature and its cognition. Its objective was to investigate the impact of a range of linguistic/literary features on the reading experience. Dr Anil Kapoor, the secretary of English Teachers' Association, HNGU and Associate Professor of English, Vijapur Mahila Arts College delivered a keynote address highlighting the methods of cognition of texts and reading and interpreting the texts from various perspectives. He also talked about endeavor on the part of a sensible reader to draw on methodologies in the field of literary criticism.

100 students of M A of HNGU affiliated P G centers participated in the symposium and 13 students presented their ideas on the texts of their choice from the syllabus. This was followed by interactions and discussions. All the participants were awarded certificates and three best papers were awarded prizes. While presenting their papers the students attempted to analyze the multiple meanings that emerge from the texts.

Dr S G Chauhan, the Principal, G D Modi college of Arts, Dr Manish Raval, HoD, Dept of English, Prof. Mukesh Raval, Associate Professor of English and Dr Mihir M Dave gave useful tips and guidance to the paper presenters. They, in the discussion, elucidated the idea that stories are linguistic, cognitive, and cultural products, whether in the context of oral traditions, classical epics, and tragedies, or more contemporary forms of fiction, such as novels. Starting with recent cognitive theories of the evolutionary sources of culture, language, and art, they discussed some of the mechanisms of the emergence of meaning in literary texts. Relying on theories of meaning originating in the study of cognitive underpinnings of language, primarily frame theory and blending, it shows how language mediates between cognitive constructs on the one hand and evolving narrative forms of symbolic expression on the other. Dr Mihir Dave gave vote of thanks.
